Blaze. Battle

▶ Ottawa firefighters battle a blaze at 395 Larouche St. at around 5 a.m. yesterday. Fire services said six people were turned out of their homes after a residential fire spread to three units from a fire on a deck.

String of fires in Ottawa

The blaze was one of a string of fires doused by fire services over the weekend. Firefighters were also called upon to extinguish a suspicious fire Saturday night in Stittsville. The Ottawa police arson unit is investigating a "minor suspicious" fire that occurred at 6 Buttonwood Trail, which damaged a wooden gate and a tree.

Lobbyist registry too broad: Critics

Private communication or meetings with city officials would be lobbying, public meetings and delegations would not: Draft bylaw

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

A measure aimed at making local government more open might do the opposite, some community activists say. A city report, tabled Friday, plans for a lobbyist registry that lumps in unpaid volunteers with professional lobbyists.

Under the draft bylaw, both types would register before communicating with certain city officials, if their goal is to influence city decisions.

"There are already so many layers of bureaucracy," said Denis Labreche, president of the Carlsbad Springs Community Association. "Registering is just too complicated to me."

Labreche said people should be able to talk to councillors at any time, about anything.

"These people are elected to represent and help their constituents and they need to be accessible and if they start putting barriers in front of people like that, I think that would be a problem," he said.

Bob Brocklebank, of the Glebe Community Association, said he is concerned the bylaw would turn every civic-minded person into a lobbyist.

"I do see the logic," he said. "But how laborious is this going to be? I wonder if they've cast their net too broadly."

Brocklebank said councillors constantly meet with constituents and he's concerned neighbourhood groups members will have to register first if they want to express an opinion on any matter of council.

Carleton Prof. Ian Lee, who is also a Friends of Lansdowne member, said the point of registering paid lobbyists or corporate interests is that "they have big bucks and are trying to work behind closed doors, they might have something to hide. Not-for-profits are working in the public domain, they have nothing to offer legislators."

"The more open and accessible our government is, the better it is for taxpayers"
MAYOR JIM WATSON

There will be several chances for public comment on the registry, starting with the Governance Renewal Sub-Committee Dec. 1.

Mayor Jim Watson who campaigned on creating a registry said he's eager to hear if the bylaw is "too strict or not strict enough."

He said the purpose of the registry is to capture anyone lobbying the city for a change to a policy, procedure or practice.

"There are lots of volunteers who work for organizations that are seeking change from the city and they should still be included in it," he said.

Police bike stops car chase

Suspected abductor found hiding under porch Alleged abductee released without injury

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

A dangerous car chase in a suspected abduction came to an abrupt end yesterday when Ottawa police threw an officer's bicycle under a stolen van, deflating one of the vehicle's tires.

Staff Sgt. Brad Hampson said he had never seen a chase stopped that way before.

Police would not say exactly where the chase took place and Hampson would not confirm it was related to reports that a van was seen driving on the sidewalk along Elgin Street.

However, he said the pursuit started in the Market area and went through Vanier and Uppertown, where it was halted at times when it became a danger to the public and police.

A 23-year-old man was arrested when a canine unit found him hiding under a porch around Gilmour and Kent streets after he fled on foot.

Officers said the man is suspected of abducting a woman and the Partner Assault Section is investigating.

The woman was not in the car at the time of the chase and she was released unharmed, police said.

Witnesses are asked to contact the Partner Assault Section at 613-236-1222, ext. 5407, or Crime Stoppers at 613-233-8477 (TIPS).

Youth sought after gunshots

A man described by Ottawa police as "armed and dangerous" is being sought for questioning after two reports of gunshots fired over the weekend.

The first reported case of shots being fired occurred on Friday at about 7 p.m. near 327 York St., where police discovered evidence of gunshots.

The guns and gangs unit and D.A.R.T. identified Daniel Enrique Esquivel, 19, of Ottawa as a suspect. He is wanted for firearms offences.

He is described as five-foot-eight and about 141 pounds.

Man falls from Kanata highrise

ACCIDENT. A man in his 40s is in critical condition after he fell from a 15-storey highrise yesterday near the 7300 block of Campeau Drive in Kanata, paramedics said. A woman called 911 after seeing a man fall past her window, paramedic spokesman Steven Leu said. When paramedics found the man, he was breathing but not fully conscious. He was taken to hospital with life-threatening injuries.

Swim for freedom ends in arrest

SOMETHING FISHY. Firefighters had to fish a suspected young offender out of the Rideau River near Manotick after he tried to escape an arrest warrant by swimming away. Ottawa police said they went to the boy's home to execute an outstanding arrest warrant, but the suspect fled into the river. They followed him along the shoreline and requested the assistance of the Ottawa Fire Department and Ottawa Ambulance Service. He was arrested, taken to hospital for observation and later released and transported to the Ottawa Police Service cellblock.

Pepper-spray use investigated

Twitter, Facebook comments criticize police action

Two University of California, Davis police officers involved in pepper spraying seated protesters are being placed on administrative leave as the chancellor of the school accelerates the investigation into the incident.

UC Davis Chancellor Linda Katehi yesterday said she has been inundated with reaction over the incident, in which an officer dispassionately fires pepper spray on a line of sitting demonstrators.

Video of the incident was circulated widely on YouTube, Facebook and Twitter, and the university's faculty association called on Katehi to resign, saying there had been a "gross failure of leadership." Katehi said she takes "full responsibility for the incident" but has resisted calls for her resignation, instead pledging to take actions to make sure "that this does not happen again." Some Occupy campers have full-time jobs

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
IN EDMONTON

Occupy Edmonton wants to clear up a misconception.

Of the core group of regular campers at Jasper Avenue and 102 Street site, five or six are full-time students and another five leave daily for full-time jobs, said a spokesperson.

"I am in my last year of political science and then plan to go to law school," said Mahad Mohamed, 23.

One member juggling Occupy camp duties and working full-time is Brooke B., a former Westin chef who now waits tables at night.

▶ Brooke B.

She's also a mom of two and hung up her chef's jacket — and its 60-hour work weeks — to raise her kids, aged nine and a year and a half. She also pays taxes. Brooke said she was bothered by comments posted online in response to a news story recently, saying the protesters should all get jobs.

"It's a logical fallacy," said Brooke. "But it's frustrating.... We're here holding this ground so we can get this message to more people."

She stays full-time at the camp, with her partner and kids, since they winterized.

"I've always felt that there were gross inadequacies in our society. This movement just resonated. It's time," said Brooke.

Egyptian protesters battle police

People fear stalwarts of Mubarak's party could win polls Concern over plan to shield military from oversight

Egyptian soldiers and police set fire to protest tents in Cairo's Tahrir Square and fired tear gas and rubber bullets in a major assault yesterday to drive out thousands demanding that the military rulers quickly transfer power to a civilian government. At least 11 protesters were killed and hundreds were injured.

It was the second day of clashes marking a sharp escalation of tensions on Egypt's streets a week before the first elections since the ouster of longtime authoritarian leader Hosni Mubarak in February. The military took over the country, promising a swift transition to civilian rule. But the pro-democracy protesters who led the uprising have grown increasingly angry with the ruling generals, and suspect they are trying to cling to power even after an elected parliament is seated and a new president is voted in.

Street battles continued throughout the day and long into the night, spreading to side streets and sending a wave of injuries to makeshift clinics on the streets.

The military-backed cabinet said in a statement that elections set to begin on Nov. 28 would take place on time and thanked the police for their "restraint," language that is likely to enrage the protesters even more.

"We're not going anywhere," protester Mohammed Radwan said after security forces tried unsuccessfully to push the crowds out of Tahrir, the epicenter of the uprising. "The mood is good now and people are chanting again," he added after many of the demonstrators returned.

The two days of clashes were some of the worst since the uprising ended on Feb. 11.

They were also one of only a few violent confrontations to involve the police since the uprising. The black-clad police were a hated symbol of Mubarak's regime and after the uprising, they have largely stayed in the background while the military took charge of security.

The military, which took over from Mubarak, has repeatedly pledged to hand power to an elected civilian government, but has yet to set a specific date. The protests over the past two days have demanded a specific date be set.

Cement used to renovate buttocks

Suspect was posing as a doctor Also performed procedure on herself, and may have victimized others

A U.S. woman who wanted to work at a nightclub started searching for someone who could perform plastic surgery at a cheap price to give her a curvier body. Police say what she found was a woman posing as a doctor who filled her buttocks with cement, mineral oil and flat-tire sealant.

The suspect, Oneal Ron Morris, 30 — who police say was born a man and identifies as a woman — was arrested Friday after a year on the lam and has been charged with practising medicine without a licence with serious bodily injury.

Police photos show Morris as a small-framed woman with bee-stung pouty lips, arched eyebrows, oversized hoop earrings — and a large backside. She was released from jail on bond. A phone listing for Morris could not be found, and it's unclear if she has an attorney.

Miami Gardens Police Sgt. Bill Bamford said yesterday that Morris bounced from house to house for a year, driving a black Mercedes and staying out of investigators' sight "like a ghost."

An officer drove by one of those possible houses nearly every day on his way to work and saw the car outside on Friday, and he arrested Morris soon after.

The victim, who is not being named due to medical privacy laws, paid $700 for a series of injections in May 2010. She was referred to Morris by a friend.

Bamford said the victim was reluctant to come forward. She quickly went to two South Florida hospitals due to severe abdominal pain and infected sores on her buttocks accompanied by flu-like symptoms. But she left each time, too embarrassed to tell doctors what she'd done.

Police scout for Hells Angels

Residents of a London, Ont., street were "concerned and uneasy" yesterday after police targeted the neighbourhood for what's believed to be a new Hells Angels foothold in the city.

Police were stopping all cars on the street on Saturday as part of the investigation, a resident said. The "spot check" was designed to identify "Ontario Motorcycle Gang members and to check the safety of their motor vehicles," police said in a statement.

The statement did not indicate what led to the police action.

Neighbours said the motorcycle club has occupied a house on the street for about six weeks. There have been no signs of criminal activity, but the Outlaws — another motorcycle club — are believed to have a clubhouse four blocks east.

Some neighbours say they're worried about a possible turf war.

THE WEALTHY BARBER RETURNS

'A LOT OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL INVESTORS THAT I RUN ACROSS DON'T PAY ATTENTION'

JEFF HODSON
@METRONEWS.CA
METRO CANADA IN VANCOUVER

David Chilton, author of The Wealthy Barber, which sold a whopping two million copies in Canada, chatted with Metro about his new book, The Wealthy Barber Returns.

Why did you decide to write a second book?
It was frustration. We've gone backwards in the last five to 10 years. We're starting to spend more than ever and save less.

How is it different?
It's dated now at 22 years, but for the most part The Wealthy Barber was conventional wisdom, repackaged in a format that made it more accessible. This book is more my opinions and my observations.... This isn't about the numbers, most of the mistakes that people make are because they're sabotaging their own situations through psychological breakdowns.

What advice do you give?
We can't continue to pay two and three per cent to mutual-fund-management companies. They have the right to be profitable, but they're too profitable in Canada.... You're not looking for anything for free, but it has to be at a more reasonable level. The second piece of advice is to put up with the volatility. You can't keep jumping in and out of the markets.... Inevitably you're going to jump in and out of the markets at the wrong time.... A lot of the most successful investors that I run across don't pay any attention.

What was most challenging about writing the book?
On stage when you use humour, you can use intonation and facial expressions. When you take that away and use only the printed page, it's way harder. Occasionally I would write something down I thought was funny. I would read it to someone on the phone and they'd think it was funny, but I'd have someone read it and they'd say, "I don't think it's funny."

Why does the format work?
Short chapters and a lot of humour. We've seen such a difference in the past 15 years in terms of people's attention spans. They're so trained to want things in short bursts. Long, text-heavy books don't work. When it comes to finance, where people are intimidated to begin with, if you throw 38 pages at them without a break they're never going to get through it.

Tips from David

- A relatively small cutback in your spending can dramatically increase saving.
- People who live within their means tend to be happier for the obvious reasons, but also because they are not consumed with consumption.
- We tend to judge people not by their net worth, but by the amount of their material possessions.
- Free flights earned through excessive loyalty credit card use are akin to the "free" hotel rooms offered to heavy gamblers.
- Saying "I can't afford it" is not an admission of failure.
- Saving should come first and borrowing later. Many Canadians live it the other way round.
- Good savers have areas of indulgence, but know that high spending in one area requires discipline in others.
- Stick to a balanced, diversified financial portfolio and focus on the long-term.

PAVING PARKLAND TO PUT UP A PARKING LOT

URBAN COMPASS

STEVE COLLINS
METRO OTTAWA

While cities across Canada mobilize courts and police against protesters camped in their public spaces, Occupy Ottawa continues to enjoy both remarkably mild weather and tolerant authorities.

Elsewhere, tents come down and handcuffs come out as the protesters run up against municipal bylaws. Occupy Toronto and Occupy Vancouver face new legal deadlines today.

Ottawa's occupiers, however, whether by dumb luck or crowd-sourced strategic brilliance, picked as their home Confederation Park, which is under the jurisdiction not of the city but of the federal National Capital Commission.

"The Canadian Museum of Nature ... now finds itself pinched for parking."

So far, the NCC has been an indulgent host, insisting only on a few ground rules like a prohibition on erecting permanent structures and politely suggesting it would like the park back for Winterlude in February.

A few blocks south, another group is occupying NCC land and wants to erect a structure they say is temporary.

The Canadian Museum of Nature, which last year completed a $216-million retrofit, now finds itself pinched for parking. Its west lawn was taken over by construction crews during the restoration. It was originally intended to be reinstated as parkland but now the museum wants to install a 150-space parking lot.

Earlier plans for an underground parking lot like those at the other Ottawa museums would have left the park intact, but would have cost over $10 million.

While the museum is confident the NCC will greenlight the parking lot, neighbours are trying to apply the brakes. Roshell Bissett, who lives in the nearby Beaver Barracks complex, was incredulous when she heard of the parking plan.

"Why would they take NCC property and make it into a parking lot?" she asked, "especially since it's the Museum of Nature … an institution that's supposed to be representing the conservation of nature?"

Bissett has started a Facebook page to publicize the issue and is gathering names for a petition, but she's also looking for practical alternatives to save the park. A local condo building, she said, has vacant parking spaces museum visitors might be able to use.

The surface parking lot plan is described as an interim measure, until underground parking becomes feasible or public transit to the museum improves. A couple of decades, maybe. Not long in the lifespan of a museum, but forever for a kid looking for grass to play on.

Bissett's skeptical of assurances that once the parkland becomes parking, it will ever be restored. She's not alone.

Worth Mentioning

ANOTHER CANADIAN CLICHÉ PUT TO REST. A survey conducted for Environment Canada suggests not all Canadians are actually obsessed with the weather.

Only 70 per cent said they're very likely to check the forecast on a typical day and only 63 per cent said the forecast is important to them.

And while 79 per cent of Canadians thought it's important that meteorologists be right about how much it's going to snow, that was down five percentage points from 2002.

"Most Canadians ... feel that the weather information they receive provides enough information to make decisions or plans," the study says.

The survey suggests a growing number of Canadians are getting weather information off the Internet, but TV and radio remain the first and second choices for respondents, with weather-specific channels topping the list.

When it comes to warnings, most Canadians get that information from local radio, the study says.

Caribou play peekaboo

A vast herd of northern caribou that scientists feared had vanished from the face of the Earth has been found, safe and sound — pretty much where aboriginal elders said it would be all along.

"The Beverly herd has not disappeared," said John Nagy, lead author of a recently published study that has biologists across the North relieved.

Those scientists were shaken by a 2009 survey on the traditional calving grounds of the Beverly herd. A herd that once numbered 276,000 animals seemed to have completely disappeared, the most dramatic and chilling example of a general decline in barren-ground caribou.

But Nagy's research — and consultation with the communities that live with the animals — concludes differently.

It turns out that the Beverly herd has simply shifted its calving grounds.

Nunavut government biologist Mitch Campbell said a survey suggests Beverly numbers remain healthy.

While scientists are excited, aboriginal elders are more likely to shrug.

Next time scientists should pay them a little more mind, Campbell said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Statler and Waldorf have their say

The Muppets' curmudgeonly critics give their opinion of the latest movie from Kermit and his crew The review might not be accurate — Statler kept his eyes closed for most of the film

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

The return of The Muppets wouldn't be complete without their constant critics, those perpetual balcony fixtures Statler and Waldorf who've been hurling insults at Kermit the Frog and his gang since the beginning. The old codgers weren't doing a lot of press for The Muppets, but they did agree to speak with Metro.

Have you seen the new movie The Muppets yet? And if so, what do you think of it?

Statler: I loved the movie. Amy Adams is beautiful and funny. Jason Segel is hilarious. Chris Cooper makes a great bad guy. And the star cameos are amazing!

Waldorf: Yeah, but what about The Muppets?

Statler: I closed my eyes during those parts.

Waldorf: But The Muppets are in most of the movie. You kept your eyes closed for most of the movie?

Statler: Sure. That's why I liked it so much.

Is there anything special you'd like to say to our readers in Latin America?

Statler: Buenos dias! Mi casa su casa!

Waldorf: You old fool, you just invited Brazil, Colombia and Chile over to your house.

Statler: Oh… in that case, "His casa is su casa!"

Waldorf: Can I answer the question now?

Statler: Stranger things have happened.

Waldorf: Well, I just want to say to our friends in Latin America: See The Muppets. Cause there's nothing like great entertainment…

Statler: Yeah, and The Muppets are nothing like great entertainment.

Hoping to Enlighten viewers

Series gains fan base Waiting on word if renewed for another season

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

"They're in it for a different endgame than other places and because their endgame is different, the whole process is different, the product is different and for someone like me, you couldn't ask for anything more."
MIKE WHITE ON HBO

It's ironic but the personal meltdown that accompanied the cancellation of Mike White's last series, Cracking Up, led the writer and actor to his latest acclaimed TV show.

"I had TV experiences that have been really painful in that you kill yourself and then they bury the show," said the School of Rock writer/star recently about returning to television with Enlightened.

"Sometimes the hardest part is going back to real life and try to put these idealistic notions into practice and I think that's sort of the spirit of what the show is."

Co-created with Laura Dern, the HBO series examines a woman who returns to her corporate lifestyle with a new-age lease on life after having a very public breakdown at the office.

Like many of White's more independent films (such as Chuck & Buck), the comedy has a melancholic subtlety.

"Because the character isn't an every-person, you kind of have to decide to follow her," said White.

"The cool part of TV is that you can continue to unfold a story and show a character in all of its dimensions and I think that hopefully the quality of the show will keep people coming back to it."

Enlightened has been steadily gaining fans and as White waits to hear whether the series (which airs Mondays on HBO Canada) will be renewed for another season, he remains unsure of whether another meltdown is also on the horizon.

"(I'm) facing it with a mixture of anticipation, excitement and kind of dread because it's a lot of work," laughed White.

"At the same time, there's something about this character that I relate to and in a way I think this first season is all set up ... the story of someone going up against a company and trying to change it from within can really get juicy."

Is Moore into women?

Sources say Ashton and Demi had an 'open marriage' for years

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Ashton Kutcher's alleged infidelity may have been the last straw in his marriage to Demi Moore, but sources tell Star magazine that the pair's rumoured "open marriage" had been a strain for years.

"Everyone in Hollywood knows about their arrangement, but they've managed to keep it a secret from the general public," a source claims.

"Demi is attracted to women just as much as men, so she didn't always get all she needed from Ashton. She was cool with Ashton having flirtatious relationships, too.

Somehow they made it work all these years. Both of them were respectful of each other. It was a lot of fun for them."

But Kutcher's pair of cheating scandals, including his reported tryst with a young woman during his and Kutcher's sixth anniversary, were apparently too much for Moore, who filed for divorce late last week.

What PR person leaked that crazy information?

Because, yeah, everyone knows so many marriages are broken up because the wife is hot, likes threesomes and is "cool" with outside arrangements.

What horror that must have been for Kutcher! How he survived, I have no idea.

Do you like the show?' My [11-year-old] son, Oscar, says, 'I really like it.' I was touched. My daughter said, 'I find it a little boring.'

50 green and great ideas

Clean-tech charts the future for entrepreneurial-driven change ◆ Summit's results already being put to use

BEN KNIGHT
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

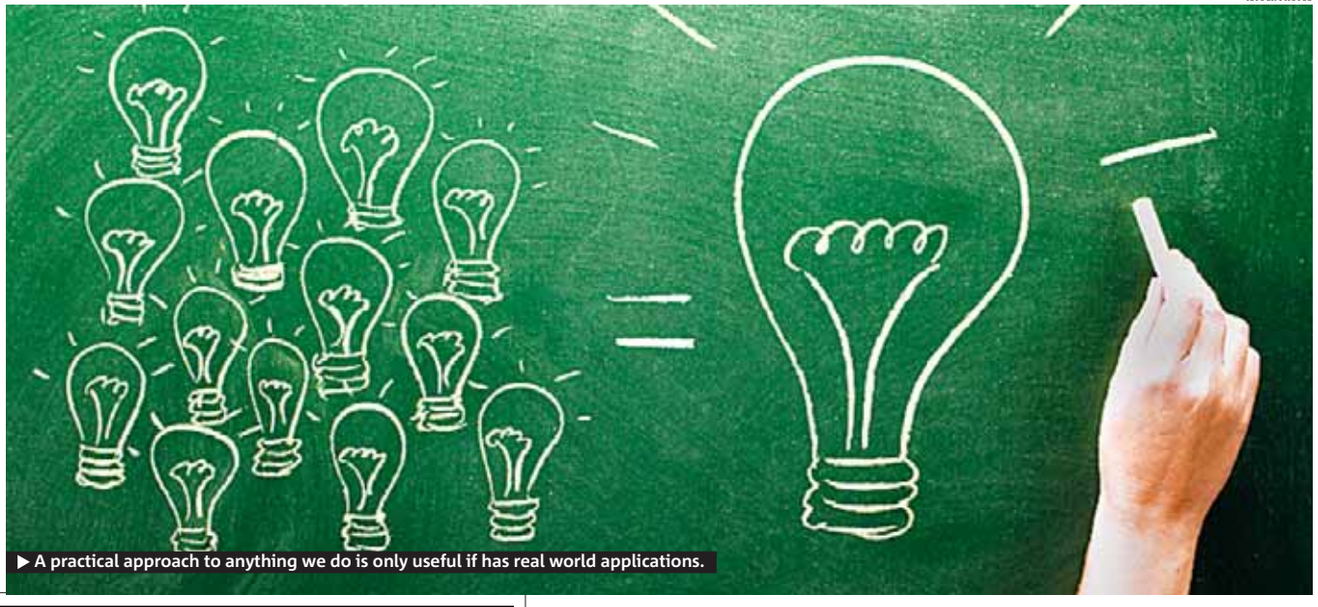
Imagine a gala awards ceremony, where the best and brightest minds in the Canadian clean-tech field are brought together to celebrate progress and achievement.

But, there's a twist. The winners are swept away to an exclusive island yacht club – and told they can't leave until they create a list of 50 innovative and practical green ideas.

This is not fiction, folks. It happened – very recently. And the result? The Clean50 Summit's list of 50 great ideas.

"We determined there are all kinds of awards for companies that have done lots of good things, but there were no awards for individuals," says Gavin Pitchford, founder/principal of Delta Management Group Corporation, which organized the event.

ISTOCK PHOTOS



▶ A practical approach to anything we do is only useful if has real world applications.

The 50 honourees came from a wide range of backgrounds. Clean-tech, retail, banks, universities — even big oil companies. And once they all met and started debating the future, there was a surprisingly high level of consensus.

"This is the first time it's ever happened, anywhere in the world," Pitchford says. "What was phenomenal was that a lot of them had never talked to people from the other sectors before. They'd sort of been greening their own little part of the world, but hadn't crossed over."

"We have such a powerful clean-tech industry in Canada." GAVIN PITCHFORD

One of the ideas include a call for governments to stop taxing initiatives that are good for the environment.

"It's possible to expense your employee's car and parking — but not their bike without them having to take a tax hit for it," he explains. "The government will let you spend money on things that have undesirable outcomes — like driving to work. But they won't fix some of the other stuff."

It turns out Canada is already a global leader in clean technology, and not everyone knows it.

"We have such a powerful clean-tech industry in Canada. It's entrepreneurial-driven. We're absolute leaders in this field in the world and I don't think that a lot of people on the corporate side really appreciate it. These businesses and these opportunities exist in this country."

The Clean50 summit boosted awareness. Many of the ideas are already being pitched to governments.

"Yes, we've heard a lot of these ideas before. But we haven't done them yet," Pitchford concludes. "It would be a real shame to lose this. So we decided to keep going with it – and that's what's happening."

View the full list of ideas at http://clean50.ca/50greatideas.html.

STAYING GREEN WHILE KEEPING THINGS CLEAN

What remedies do you suggest for cleaning the toilet? Nancy of Winnipeg

QUEEN OF GREEN

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

You must try my green cleaning recipe, called all-purpose powder. It's very easy to make — it only takes two ingredients.

In a container, combine a 50:50 mixture of borax and washing soda. Stir and then sprinkle into toilet, scrub and rinse.

This recipe works well with a white vinegar chaser, too.

Don't add vinegar to the powder.

Instead, after scrubbing, pour about half a cup of white vinegar in the toilet.

Let it sit to disinfect and deodorize before flushing.

Add borax and washing soda to your next grocery list — they're key ingredients in most of my favourite green cleaning recipes, available at queenofgreen.ca.

Borax, or sodium borate, is a naturally occurring alkaline mineral salt.

It's effective because it disinfects, fights mould and mildew and whitens.

You can find a box, for about $7, in the laundry aisle of most grocery stores.

Most people will recognize the borax box from their grandmother's pantry.

Washing soda, or sodium carbonate, is more caustic and has a higher pH than its cousin, baking soda.

Fewer mainstream grocery chains carry washing soda, although Arm and Hammer distributes it.

If you can't find it at your local grocer in the laundry aisle, check out health food stores or organic grocers.

Borax and washing soda are found in a host of green cleaning recipes because they are versatile, affordable and eco-friendly.

But even things from nature can be harmful, so store borax and all green cleaning products safely away from children and pets.

Finished products you make should also be clearly labelled.

And don't underestimate baking soda, which on its own lifts dirt, deodorizes and whitens. You can even substitute washing soda for baking soda in this recipe.

▶ This recipe serves eight.

To spice things up a bit, increase the hot pepper flakes in this Mushroom, Tomato and Corn Chowder

Variation

Garnish
Top the soup with low fat grated mozzarella or Parmesan cheese.

Ingredients:

- 2 tbsp (25 mL) olive oil
- 1 lb (500g) sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2 cups (500 mL) chopped leeks (white part only) (about 1 large)
- 1 large potato, peeled and diced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp (5 mL) each dried oregano and basil
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) hot pepper flakes
- 2 cups (500 mL) water
- 2 cups (500 mL) frozen or canned corn kernels
- 1 can (28oz/796mL) diced tomatoes
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) salt
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) pepper
- 1/3 cup (75 mL) chopped parsley (optional)

Preparation:

1. In large saucepan heat oil over medium heat; Add mushrooms, leeks, potato, garlic, oregano, basil and hot pepper flakes; sauté for about 5 minutes. Add water and corn; bring to boil and to 1/2 tsp (2 mL).
2. Reduce heat and simmer for about 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in tomatoes, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil; reduce heat to a simmer for about 10 minutes or until hot. Stir in parsley if desired.

Use Rice Krispies in this Parmesan Chicken to add a familiar crunch

Ingredients:

- 750 mL (3 cups) Rice Krispies, crushed to make 375 mL (1 1/2 cups)
- 125 mL (1/2 cup) freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 mL (1/2 tsp) dried basil
- 1 mL (1/4 tsp) dried oregano leaves
- 30 mL (2 tbsp) melted butter
- 1 egg or 2 egg whites
- 75 mL (1/3 cup) 2% milk
- 75 mL (1/3 cup) flour
- 2 mL (1/2 tsp) salt
- 6 boneless skinless chicken breasts

Preparation:

1. In shallow pan or plate, combine crushed cereal, Parmesan cheese, basil and oregano. Stir in melted butter.
2. In bowl, beat egg and milk slightly. Stir in flour and salt; mix until smooth. Dip chicken in batter, then coat with cereal mixture. Place in single layer on foil or parchment lined baking sheet.
3. Bake in 180°C (350°F) oven for about 35 minutes or until no longer pink in centre. (Do not cover or turn chicken while cooking).

The teacher says...

Dr. Jane Foley is a leading U.S. educator who motivates other teachers to do better Here are her thoughts on the 'smart' debate

NED EHRBAR
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

How do you define smart?
I'd define it in a number of ways. First of all, it's understanding history and how history shapes the present and future. Next, it's the present: knowing the world around you, physically, but also beyond your surroundings and accepting and appreciating that we live in this global world. It's also important to understand math, science and language, but also how you apply that in your daily and professional life. And then how to access information and discern the value of that information since we're bombarded by info overload.

Is the definition of 'smart' changing?
Yes. Exponentially, and at a rate faster than we've seen in our lifetime. We see our students preparing now for a life where we don't even know what their career will be, so access to this information — it's changing the way all of us have to think, learn and work.

We value 'book smarts' but now there seems to be an additional set of skills required to make it in this world.
It's a hybrid. We want to learn the classics — the past — and our current culture — the present — but we have to evolve with the changes. Books can be hard copies or digital, e-mail, social media, by phone like we're talking now, or a face-to-face meeting. I go to a lot of universities in my job and people still go to libraries! There's still a lust for knowledge.

▶ "First of all, some do read Moby-Dick!"

But some kids don't read Moby-Dick yet they're on Google+. Doesn't that give them the advantage in 2011?
First of all, some do read Moby-Dick! Do they have an advantage? I don't think you can compare. Think of every generation and what they faced. My parents faced WWII, a lot of us lived through the ending of the Cold War, now young people are digital natives. The common denominator is talented people rise to the occasion and lead. The difference today is that it's essential for them to have a national and international focus.

GENIUSES AT SCHOOL

MARIE CURIE (1867-1934)

▶ If you've ever had an X-ray scan, thank her. Born to teachers, she tutored at a young age before going on to become the first person to earn two Nobel Prizes.

ALBERT EINSTEIN (1879-1955)

▶ He may or may not have had a learning disability, but he did rail against the rote teachings at his secondary school.

STEPHEN HAWKING (1942-)

▶ As a young man, he attended a girls school. His favourite subject: math. Now he's the most famous physicist in the world.

BOBBY FISCHER (1943-2008)

▶ This chess whiz went to school in Brooklyn, and learned how to play with a set from a candy store.

Deck yourself in delight Jane Ip reminds that a smile is any entrepreneur's most important accessory

TURNING POINT

TERESA KRUZE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

In Chinese, the words Jeanne Lottie mean true happiness.

And for more than 25 years, Jane Ip has been bringing joy to the millions of women who have bought her beautifully designed handbags and accessories. She is proud of her success and honest when it comes to doing business in a challenging economy.

"You need discipline to get through the tough times, but if you have your health and mental ability, nothing can hinder you to go forward."

Jane was inspired by her father's entrepreneurial spirit and business acumen. Every night at dinner she and her sister Charlotte would be schooled in the world of business ownership.

"He always told us to be patient. It's easy to open a business but it's hard to maintain.

▶ Jane Ip, creator and designer of Jeanne Lottie handbags and accessories.

Being an entrepreneur is not for everybody. You have to know what you want and really pursue it."

As I look at Jane standing in the midst of the company she has built and nurtured, I'm reminded of the Chinese meaning of Jeanne Lottie.

As I take her photo in amongst the beauty of her creations I realize her smile says it all: true happiness.

CONSIDER A CAREER AS A PARALEGAL

Did you know that to practice as a Paralegal in Ontario you must be licensed by the Law Society of Upper Canada (LSUC)? In order to write the LSUC licensing exam,you must graduate from a program of study accredited by LSUC.
The paralegal program at Algonquin Careers Academy is accredited by LSUC. The objective of this program is to provide both theoretical and "hands-on"training in the key areas of paralegal work and to ensure the student is prepared to successfully undertake the Law Society's licensing exam.
The need for well-trained,competent legal professionals has never been greater. Paralegals may find employment in a wide variety of workplaces, including:
• Government (Federal, Provincial, Municipal)
• Advocacy agencies
• As a Self-Employed Paralegal
• Law and Paralegal Firms
• Courts (Federal and Provincial)
• Legal Clinics
• Banks/Financial Institutions
• Insurance Companies
• Large Corporations
PART-TIME EVENING CLASSES NOW AVAILABLE
You can complete this program in less than one year by attending school full time, Monday to Friday.
This program can be completed part time through evening and weekend classes.

Bombers' run game ignites in East final

Win puts Winnipeg in position to end 20-year Grey Cup drought

TREVOR HAGAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Bombers quarterback Buck Pierce rushes the ball against the Tiger-Cats in Winnipeg yesterday.

Chris Garrett says he's dreamed of winning the Grey Cup and being named most valuable player.

Now the Blue Bombers running back has a chance to accomplish that after rushing 29 times for 190 yards and one touchdown as Winnipeg defeated the Hamilton Tiger-Cats 19-3 in yesterday's CFL East Division Final.

Winnipeg advances to the 99th Grey Cup in Vancouver on Nov. 27 against the B.C. Lions.

"It's getting closer and closer to being true," Garrett said of the dream where he scores a pair of touchdowns. "But there's some work to be done to get to that stage. I'm just ready to work so I can get there."

BOMBERS	TICATS

Defensive lineman Jason Vega scored Winnipeg's other touchdown as a receiver and Justin Palardy booted field goals from 22 and 37 yards.

It was the rookie Vega's second reception this season and his first career TD will go down as a three-yard pass from backup quarterback Alex Brink.

Bomber quarterback Buck Pierce had missed his team's last regular-season game with a sprained knee suffered Oct. 28 in Toronto.

He was limping a bit during the game, but that wasn't too surprising considering he ran nine times for 66 yards and completed 16-of-28 passes for 175 yards with one interception.

Winnipeg's domination started after Vega scored his TD at 4:25 of the second and Palardy followed it up with his 22-yarder. The Bombers led 10-3 at the halftime.

Palardy connected on his 37-yarder midway through the third and Garrett dove in for a three-yard TD as time expired. Winnipeg didn't attempt a convert.

The Blue Bombers finished with 271 yards rushing to the Tiger-Cats' 39 yards. THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Lions quarterback Travis Lulay.

The B.C. Lions will get a chance to win the Grey Cup on home turf.

An interception by defensive back Korey Banks helped the Lions score two touchdowns in 2:26 of the second quarter as B.C. rolled over the Edmonton Eskimos 40-23 in the CFL West Final yesterday.

Quarterback Travis Lulay threw for 313 yards, a pair of touchdown passes and 61-yard scoring run.

"This is huge," said Lulay. "This is the pinnacle of what we do — having an opportunity to play in the Grey Cup game.

Lulay hit Geroy Simon on a 53-yard TD and tossed a 14-yard strike to Andrew Harris as the Lions broke open a close game with 20 points in the second quarter. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Crosby to return vs. Isles tonight

Sid the Kid is back.

Penguins superstar Sidney Crosby will make his season debut tonight against the New York Islanders in Pittsburgh, his first game in nearly a year since being sidelined with concussion symptoms.

Crosby hasn't played since taking head shots in consecutive games in January against Washington and Tampa Bay.

The 2007 NHL MVP spent the last 10 months undergoing a painstakingly thorough rehabilitation that left him wondering when — or even if — he'd play again.

His return ends weeks of speculation that appeared to put the ever-polite Crosby on edge. The 24-year-old Cole Habour, N.S., native declined repeated interview requests in recent weeks as the speculation about a possible return date reached a fever pitch.

His teammates stressed there was no need for Crosby to rush, and the Penguins have been one of the league's top teams through the season's first six weeks.

Yet they understand they're not the same without Crosby.

"We know what he means to this team, this city," defenceman Kris Letang said. "He's a special player." THE CANADIAN PRESS

"We know how badly he wants to play. We want it too, because it means that he's healthy, and that's all you ever really want for him."

Jays' Bautista hopes MVP news is good

'With everything he's done, he's by far for me the MVP,' GM Anthopoulos says of Toronto slugger

Blue Jays slugger Jose Bautista was under a lot of pressure after signing a long-term contract extension and becoming the face of the franchise after his breakout 2010 campaign.

He responded with one of the best individual seasons in team history. Today, he just might be rewarded for his efforts.

Bautista is a contender for the American League MVP award after hitting .302 with 43 home runs, 103 RBIs and a .447 on-base percentage.

"He's as good as it gets," Jays general manager Alex Anthopoulos said in a recent interview. "I'm certainly hopeful for him and he certainly deserves it."

There is no clear favourite for the AL honour this year.

Jacoby Ellsbury and Adrian Gonzalez of the Boston Red Sox are in the mix along with New York's Curtis Granderson. Cy Young Award winner Justin Verlander of the Detroit Tigers could also be a factor.

"He's the one guy that some people are overlooking. He was on the field for 160 games for the Detroit Tigers and they made the playoffs. I think I would vote for him."

JOSE BAUTISTA ON DETROIT'S MIGUEL CABRERA, THE PLAYER HE WOULD VOTE FOR MVP AFTER HIMSELF.

The results of the Baseball Writers' Association of America vote will be announced at 2 p.m. ET today.

"I realize that I had a good year on the individual side," Bautista said. "But I do realize that there are other guys around the league who had great years as well.

"All I can do right now is be hopeful."

Anthopoulos said Bautista is a well-rounded player who can do it all.

"I think with what Jose means to the team and the organization — playing Gold Glove defence both in right field and at third — and the offensive numbers speak for themselves," Anthopoulos said.

Bautista recently won his second straight Hank Aaron Award as the most outstanding offensive performer in the AL after a vote by fans and a panel of Hall of Famers.

The 31-year-old slugger led the major leagues in home runs, walks (132), slugging percentage (.608) and on-base plus slugging (1.056) to become the first player since Barry Bonds in 2001 to lead in four offensive categories.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 It's time for a change. Make it a big one.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You may have to be ruthless with someone you have dealings with today, especially if they have been wasting your time on trivialities.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You can make yourself happy or you can make yourself sad – it takes the same effort.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 What the planets are trying to tell you is that you have been pushing yourself too hard. Ease up.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Set your own targets and make your own rules. All things are possible now.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Sit down with loved ones and discuss what has gone wrong – and what needs to be done to bring back the good times.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 No matter how many misunderstandings there may have been in recent weeks the approaching solar eclipse will make getting through to other people very easy indeed.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Less is more, for now.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 A little bit of optimism will go a long way over the coming week

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You cannot be bothered with trivialities. It's the big questions that excite you.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Beneath the surface people everywhere are pretty much the same, so reach out and make contact

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. You will be under a lot of pressure today, but there is no doubt at all that you can handle it, so don't panic
